Your Healthy Home Office

Eyestrain? Sore back? It is amazing how making even small tweaks to furnishings or work habits can make you more comfortable and energized over a long work day.

To reduce your risk of injury, and improve your performance no matter where you work, consider these practical ergonomic tips.

01 Adjust Your Immediate Surroundings.
Start with a good chair. Stick with proper ergonomic seating to increase comfort and reduce risk of injury.
Position your screen correctly. To reduce eyestrain, a monitor arm can easily hold a screen in the proper position.
See the light. To minimize glare and illuminate work materials as needed, use an adjustable task light.

02 Incorporate Movement and Visual Breaks into Your Work Day.
Vary your posture. For better health, create a daily work style that includes both seated and standing postures.
Keep moving. To stay active, take a short walk during your lunch break, or build in stretch breaks throughout the day.
Rest your eyes. To reduce eyestrain, incorporate brief “rest breaks” to refocus and rest your eyes throughout the day.

03 Nourish Your Spirit with Connections to Nature.
Soak up some sun. Improve your mood by working in—or walking through—areas in direct sunlight.
Bring in plants. Use plants to reduce stress and create a feeling of well-being.
Give yourself a view. Improve memory and focus by viewing natural settings, or images of such, during the work day.
