

Apparel Regional Office

Sector Focus: Consumer Products

This is a regional creative office located in New York's famous Chelsea district for a well-known American shoe and apparel company. The space houses a team of design professionals who work hands-on with a range of products, both existing and experimental. Thus, a spacious work environment with a collaborative edge, movable workstations that can be reorganized for various projects and efficient technology support were all major concerns for the company when it selected the Currents® office system by Knoll. With Currents, the company achieved flexibility, function and style.

Designed by Robert Reuter and Charles Rozier, Currents is ideal for collaborative, team-oriented mobile workspaces. The low-horizon Currents service wall, cover and right, provides ready access to power, data and communications while offering expansive off-module planning opportunities for mobile Currents desks, which are freestanding and height-adjustable. Calibre storage platforms in each work area, cover, provide additional shared space for collaboration. Life™ chairs offer ergonomic support throughout, left, and Series 2 mobile pedestals accommodate personal storage.