

United Jewish Communities

Sector Focus: Non-Profit

United Jewish Communities represents and serves 157 Jewish federations and 400 independent Jewish communities across North America. Serving men, women and children – both professionals and volunteers, UJC represents one of the world's largest and most effective networks of social service providers and programs. When United Jewish Communities moved to a new 64,000 square foot space in Manhattan, the organization sought clean, streamlined systems to delineate work spaces. The solution: sleek, graceful Dividends Horizon® private and open office systems. Glass screens add visual lightness to Dividends Horizon® panels, cover, while Calibre storage and Reuter overhead organize the space with style and modern simplicity. Dividends Horizon®, left, expands work area in the private office, creating an attractive, pleasant working environment. Large L-shaped tables give United Jewish Communities associates ample room for planning and define space with clean architectural lines. Morrison sliding glass screens on Dividends Horizon® workstations, right, block out noise and can be locked for added security. Screens are the perfect solution for providing additional privacy during impromptu meetings and important phone calls.
