

Ligand Pharmaceuticals

Sector Focus: Pharmaceuticals

When Ligand Pharmaceuticals relocated its offices to the Torrey Pines Life Sciences Cluster in La Jolla, California, the company turned to Ferguson Pape Baldwin Architects and Knoll dealer Parron Hall Office Interiors to select furniture that would create a consistent aesthetic in both open plan workstations and private offices.

Antenna® Workspace tables, modesty panels and storage elements provide the flexibility required to transition Ligand Pharmaceuticals from traditional open plan workstations to unassigned desks. Antenna® Workspaces Linked Desks combine with privacy panels to offer unique customization capabilities, creating ample workspace area while maintaining privacy in the open plan office (cover). Antenna® Workspaces tables with full modesty panels and wall-mounted storage in private offices create dynamic spaces that support individual needs as well as small group meetings (left). Life® chairs, with an intuitive adjustment and a slim silhouette, provide primary task and conference seating throughout the space. The chair's advanced control automatically adjusts to provide personalized and effortless ergonomic support. Life® chairs in the company's training room feature a leather seat topper for added comfort (right).
